DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

2. Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claims contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. In step (e) of claim 1, applicant states "folding said panel without said elastic band over both said other panel and said elastic band so that said distal end of said panel without said elastic band is aligned approximately even with said outer end of said elastic band." First, it is unclear which panel the applicant is referring to, since a first and a second panel were introduced in the claim, furthermore, both panels have elastic bands on them, so it is unclear how this process step can take place.

3. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

4. Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.
5. Claim 1 recites the limitation "said panel" in lines 14 and 15 and "said other panel" in line 14. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim. A "first panel" and "second panel" are defined in the claims, so it is unclear which panel applicant is referring to.

Art Unit: 1734

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. Claims 10-13 and 16-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Otsubo et al. (EP 1 240 881 A2) in view of Glaug et al (US Patent No. 6,358,350 B1).

Otsubo discloses a process for continuously making a pants-type diaper including:

(1) forming front and back panels by cutting web (61) in the machine direction along line c;
(2) attaching elastic bands (62, 63) to both of the front and back panels at the distal end;
(3) securing an absorbent assembly (84) to the front and back panels; (4) folding one of the panels over the other panel; and (5) bonding the side edges together to form an absorbent article with a waist opening and a pair of leg openings. (See Figure 2.) Otsubo does not disclose the elastic bands being cantilevered outward from the distal end of the panel, as per claims 10 and 16. Glaug discloses an embodiment in Figure 6 where the elastic strips (97, 112) are glued to the edge of the web (98) and as a result extend outward from the distal end. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made that an alternative to the bands used in Otsubo, are the bands used in Glaug, where the elastic extends over the edge of the web and is used as a waistband.

Art Unit: 1734

As to claims 11, 12, and 17, Glaug teaches the elastic used in one embodiment has a width of 7.9 mm, however, this embodiment discussed is the embodiment in Figure 2 with the sleeve member encasing the elastic. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have a width of the elastic within the claimed ranges, because there is an appreciation in Glaug that the elastic width is important because it deals with the fit of the resulting garment. "[W]here the general conditions of a claim are disclosed in the prior art, it is not inventive to discover the optimum or workable ranges by routine experimentation." In re Aller, 220 F.2d 454, 456, 105 USPQ 233, 235 (CCPA 1955).

As to claim 13, one of ordinary skill in the art would appreciate that an elastic has greater retraction than the web material (61) in Otsubo in view of Glaug.

As to claim 18, a retracted length of the bands being at least 2% less than the panel is within the purview of artisan, because, elastics are known to have less length than the material the elastic is being bonded to.

8. Claims 14, 15, and 20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Otsubo in view of Glaug as applied to claims 10 and 16 above, and further in view of Thorson et al. (US Patent No. 6,979,380 B2).

Otsubo in view of Glaug does not disclose stretch the front and back panels as per claims 14 and 15. Thorson teaches the elongation of the body panel material is between about 20% and about 400% which effects the final size or pitch of the undergarment. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to stretch the panels of Otsubo in view of Glaug based on the teachings of Thorson.
